

An aerial photograph showing a rural landscape. A large area of land, primarily brown and tan in color, is outlined with a thick red border. This area is situated between a dense green forest on the right and a road on the left. The land within the red outline appears to be a mix of cleared fields and some vegetation. To the left of the red-outlined area, there are several buildings, including one with solar panels, and a road. At the bottom of the image, a paved road with white dashed lines runs horizontally. A white truck is visible on this road. The background is dominated by a thick, green forest covering a hillside. Several power lines and towers are visible in the upper left portion of the image.
